

Put Your Faith In Me
(Randy White)

You've been pullin' through your life
On a different road with no direction
Hurrying through halls
Opening the walls along the way
You watched all your dreams go bad
And every man you've had has left you cryin'
Put your faith in me, girl
I'm where your hard times end

I know you must be weary
Just a little leary of affection
Time and all the strain
Hiding all the pain they were feeling
Say you've had enough of
Promises of love that no one's keepin'
Put your faith in me, girl
I'm where your hard times end

Enjoy another time
Culminates the same old line that you've been hearin'
Ya see, I've heard them all myself
'Till I think there's nothing else worth believing - in
You see love has hurt me, too
And what I feel for you is worth believing
Put my faith in you, girl
You're where my hard times end
Put my faith in you, girl
You're where my hard times end
