

Healing in Jesus

Lyrics: Anonymous/Unknown

Scripture: Matthew 4:23

Meter: 13.13.13.13.13.13

There are some disappointments, there are times when we weep,
When those we love dearly have wounded us deep;
But there's healing in Jesus, there's a balm for each pain,
And the heart that's been wounded can be made whole again.

Refrain:

Yes, there's healing in Jesus, there's a balm for each pain,
And the heart that's been broken can be made whole again.

There are homes that are broken, there are hearts that are sore,
There are ties that are severed to unite nevermore;
But there's healing in Jesus, there's a balm for each pain,
And the heart that's been broken can be made whole again.

There are sins that have blackened both the heart and the name,
And stricken a mother with sorrow and shame;
But there's healing in Jesus, there's a balm for each pain,
And the heart that's been blackened can be made white again.

Is it true when we've fallen into pitfalls of sin
We must always be crippled, never soar high again?
No, there's healing in Jesus, there's a balm for each pain,
And the wing that's been broken can now soar high again.

There's a mother that's troubled with the cares of the home,
And wond'ring if ever a bright day will come;
But there's healing in Jesus, there's a balm for each pain,
And the heart that is heavy can be made light again.
